A RECEIVER ASKED FOR.

CASUALTYSWRECKCOMPLETE GENERAL SLOCUM WILL NOT CONTINUE AS

PRESIDENT OF THE COMPANY. CRIMINAL CHARGES LIKELY TO BE PREFERRED

AGAINST THOSE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE INSURANCE COMPANY'S COLLAPSE-THE STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF IN-

YORK POLICY HOLDERS. The directors of the American Casualty and Security Insurance Company determined yesterday that it was useless to try to carry on the business of the corporation, and to ask for the appointreceiver. In other words, they deter mined that the wreck was complete and that it was impossible to save anything. This work may get some men into serious trouble, for it is known that has been the utmost recklessness in the conduct of the affairs of this company, as there was the management of the American Steam Boiler Insurance Company. It has been well known in insurance circles for some time that the American Casualty Insurance Company was in a bad way, and that desperate efforts were being made to put it on its feet again. These efforts have not been essful, and yesterday the directors passed r resolution asking for the appointment of a re-ceiver. The company originally had a capital of $1,000,000 and a surplus of $500,000. All of this has lisappeared, and there is an impairment of over $500,609 beyond this, due to the methods of those who have had control of it.

The American Casualty Company is the child of the old American Steam Boiler Insurance Com-pany. After the men who had controlled this lastned concern had made all the use they could of it they conceived the idea of organizing another mpany and getting what they could out of that. The men who were responsible for the organiza-tion of the American Casualty Company are Henry B. Beecher, William E. Midgley and Vincent R. henck. Midgley was the vice-president of the Steam Boiler Company and the president of the American Casualty Company. Schenck was secretary of both companies. When these men saw that there was nothing further for them in the American Steam Boiler Company they organized in Maryland the American Casualty, and fought for some time for admission into this State. They were not permitted to do business here until they had secured a legislative act, and Timothy D. Sullivan handled the bill and David B. Hill signed it. After the American Casualty Company was organized the business of the American Steam Boiler Insurance Company was turned over to it. In those States in which the insurance officials would not allow the new company to do business the name of the Steam Boiler Company was kept up, but in other States it disappeared, and the American Casualty took its place. Investigation of the affairs of the American Steam Boiler Company some time ago showed that $500,000 had disappeared without any sufficient reason. It did not appear that it had been lost in the regular line of business, but there was no adequate accounting for it. Applica-tion was made for the appointment of a receiver, and two weeks after the application the receiver was named.

STOCKHOLDERS BEGIN INVESTIGATING.

In the mean time the stockholders of the American Casualty Company set an investigation on foot which showed that not only the capital of $1,000,000 had been wiped out, but the surplus of $500,000 had disappeared, and that there was an apparent deficit of $500,000. Further investigation showed that Beecher, Schenck & Co., who were managers for the company, were indebted to it to the amount of $250,000. A further examination was had, and as a result of it General Henry W. Slocum was asked to accept the position of president, but he decided to wait until he could have an examination made on his own account. This showed that not only the capital of the company was impaired, that a line of business had been undertaken which might wreck the strongest company. This was wholesale railroad insurance. The casualties of a number of railroad companies were taken. High premiums were paid, but the premiums have High premiums were paid, but the premiums were paid, but the premiums were paid, but the premium against it for accidents on railroads aggregating $10,000,000. If one-quarter of this amount could be collected against the company it would have been wrecked anyway.

It has been brought out by further examinations that Beecher, Schenck and Midgley have been loaning one another sums of money on stock which was practically worthless. Stock of the American Steam Boller Company has been used to secure large loans, and the stock of this company, which is an absolute wreck, is not worth anything now. THE NEW PRESIDENT'S FIRST STATEMENT.

It was not until a few weeks ago that General im would accept the presidency of the American Casualty Company. He did so on the report of the expert accountants, who assured him the there was something left for the company after all. At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the company, on October 24, he made a statement to them, in part as follows:

Gentlemen: This is the first meeting of this Board of Directors held since my election as president. I assumed the duties of my office on the 12th inst., and have had only ten days in which to study the condition of the company and its business methods. I deem it my duty to report to you at this time, very frankly, what I have learned, and what has thus far been done by me.

I assume that all of you know the conditions under which I consented to assume the duties of president. statement was presented to me purporting to give the liabilities and assets of the company. A trust deed was made which secured to the new administration the voting power on the stock held by all of the general managers. and an assignment was made of certain securities t cure the payment of ourstanding obligations of these managers. An agreement was also placed in the hands of the trustees by which any desired changes could be hade in the contract heretofore existing between the company and its general managers. I found but few books or papers in the office belonging to the company. and but little to guide me in the discharge of my duties. telegraphed to Mr. Austin, vice-president, requesting sets of the company. This examination resulted in the discovery on our part of the fact that the collaterals de-posited for security for temporary loans consisted chiefly stock in the American Steam Boiler Insurance Com-This stock had been taken as security to the amoun of $50 a share. I am assured that on the dissolution of this company, which is speedily to take place, it is probable that amount will be paid on the stock. Of the accuracy of this statement. I have serious doubts.

On the day after Mr. Austin and myself made this examination I employed a thorough accountant to come to this office and investigate the statement which had been made to me, and also to examine all the assets of the company in this city together with the collaterals for loans due the company. The accountant is still enm money reported to be in the hands of agents, what the exact amount of losses may prove to be, how much of the debts due the company secured by collaterals can be collected, are all problems which cannot yet be solved. I have, however, learned enough to convince me that the affairs of the company have been conducted, to express it very mildly, in an exceedingly loose manner.

The plan upon which the company was founded, viz., the placing of one of the general managers in control of the company as its president, and the giving to the general managers the virtual control of it, never met my approval, and I do not think that it has ever met the approval of the majority of this board. I remonstrated against it in the early days of the organization, and was quieted by the assurance that the arrangement, so far as the president of the company was concerned, was to be regarded as but temporary in its nature.

I am now in grave doubt as to the course I should pursue. Upon the advice of friends, however, I have de-cided to remain in the position I now occupy until such time as I can advise you more in detail and more ac-curately as to the true condition of affairs and the probability of our being able to regain public trust and place the company upon such a firm foundation as will justify us in asking the confidence of the community. If this investigation should at any time convince me that it will be impossible for me to accomplish this result. I shall convene a meeting of the board and pre-sent facts to you for your action.

GENERAL SLOCUM GIVES UP THE FIGHT. Since this meeting General Slocum, John E. Searles and Edmund C. Converse, the trustees the company, have been working to secure the necessary capital to restore the company to a condition which would permit it to go on. They met with failure. The reputation of the company, as made by Beecher, Schenck & Co., preceded them and their friends, and few would go to their support. On November 10 a meeting of the directors was held in Baltimore. Then to these three men full power was given to do anything they could to save the company. Previous to this, Beecher, Schenck & Co. had been compelled to turn over their interests in the concern to the three trustees. The inability to secure captain became apparent to General Slocum recently, and yesterday there was a special meeting of the Company, Presbyterian Church at Fifth-ave, and Twelfth-st. Several meetings have been held already in various churches, and they have been largely attended. The public are invited to the one this evening.

Gentlemen: I have called this meeting for the pur pose of saying to you that in my judgment I shall not be justified in continuing any longer the attempt to carry on its business. You will remember that when I committee who made it could not obtain the informa-tion which a good accountant could obtain by taking possession of the books and papers of the company.

as to the course which I should pursue, but upon the advice of friends I had decided to remain in the posiadvice of friends I had decided to remain in the posi-tion until such time as I could advise you more in de-tail and more accurately as to the true condition of affairs. I have since made such report to the meeting of the stockholders. At their earnest request, I consented to continue for a few days longer in the office of presi-dent to enable them to make an effort to secure the necessary funds to place the company on a sound basis. The time has come now when I deem it my duty to say to you that I am unable to continue longer to occupy this position, and to recommend to you that an application be made for the appointment of a receiver for the company.

business. If I should continue as president of the com-pany, and it should ultimately fail, I could not escape the responsibility of my acts, and I should be severely and justly blamed for doing it. It is a responsibility which I cannot shift from my shoulders to yours or any tockholder's who may desire a different result. The rear it. I therefore recommend the adoption of the cation to the proper courts for the appointment of a re-ceiver of the effects of the company.

The resolution was adopted unanimously and the counsel of the company was instructed to go to Baltimore immediately and ask for the appointment of a receiver there.

MR. PIERCE TO PROTECT STOCKHOLDERS.

During the meeting James F. Pierce, the State Superintendent of Insurance, went into the room and demanded to be allowed to know what was going on. Although Mr. Pierce has known of the mpairment of the capital for some time, he has impairment of the capital for some time, he has held back to allow General Slocum and others to do what they could to restore it. The moment that he learned yesterday that a receiver was to be asked for he said that he would take charge of the company and protect the interests of the policyholders in this State. There is deposited with him $250,000 to mee: such emergencies. He will immediately reinsure in a responsible company the risks held by the American Casualty Company in New-York. Mr. Pierce communicated by long-distance eral, told him that the Deputy Attorney-General, to go ahead in any way possible to protect the innocent stockholders and others who had been robbed by the concern. Mr. Rosendale, the Attorney-General, in the could find him. Mr. Pierce immediately sent for him and they had a long consultation.

This will probably be one of the most complete failures in insurance circles for many years, and one of the results is likely to be the indictment under criminal charges of those persons who are responsible for it.

To a Tribune reporter who saw him last night Mr. Pierce said:

"Everything that lies within the power of the Insurance Department and the Attorney-General's office will be done to protect those who hold policies in this company. When I saw you yesterday I did not think that the end would come so quickly, and I had hopes that this company, which really had an excellent business, outside of the railroad business, would be able to go on. First-class men were trying to save the company from being a total wreck. They have failed, and have given up the effort, and I have stepped in to protect those who me law requires me to protect."

"What will be done in the nature of criminal proceedings." held back to allow General Slocum and others to proceedings?"

"On that you must not ask me. Whatever will be done lies with the lawyers and the stockholders who feel themselves aggrieved."

JUGGLING WITH THE COMPANY'S INCOME.

The American Casualty Insurance and Security Company started out three years ago with a capital of $1,000,000 and a surplus of $500,000. Many wellknown men took stock in it, and the list of stock holders runs up to nearly 100. The organizers prom holders runs up to nearly 100. The organizers promised great inducements to stockholders, and for a time these promises were fulfilled out of the extravagant premiums which were obtained from railroad companies which insured with it. From this line of business mainly the premium receipts for 1852 were £298,576.78. Bestdes paying liberal returns to stockholders, those who had control of the company made liberal loans to one another, as the work of the expert accountants shows. The total of these loans aggregates £300,000, and to cover them the managers, Beecher, Schenck & Co., turned over their interest in the company to the committee of trustees, of which General Slocum was the heat some time ago.

The State Superintendent of Insurance said lest night that he would be prepared shortly to give out a statement, showing the exact condition of affairs. This being a foreign corporation, nothing out a statement, showing the exact condition of affairs. This being a foreign corporation, nothing can be done in this State, beyond protecting the policy-holders here and bringing to justice those who are found to be guilty of fraud in connection with the wrecking of the company.

SUICIDE OF A DISAPPOINTED NURSE.

ILL-HEALTH HAD KEPT HER ALMOST CON-STANTLY FROM WORK-HER EFFICIENCY

AT A SAVANNAR YELLOW FEVER EPIBEMIC.

Poor Mary Blackmore for fourteen years had levoted herself to the care of the sick. Yesterday she committed suicide in this city. In the days when her mother was postmistress of Savannah. Ga., and when the yellow fever was devastating the city, Miss Blackmore, then little more than a child, joined the devoted band of women who she cored the afflicted. Her family, one of the oldest in the South, finally became divided. Miss Blackmore found her way to New-York. For years she wandered from one charliable institution to another, vainly trying to realize the ambition of her life and win a nurse's diniona. But her ill-health always stopped her short of the goal.

At last, ten weeks ago, a friend secured an introduction for her to Dr. Daniel Lewis, the well-known surgeon, who has a private sanitarium at No. 151 West Fifty-first-st. But her old weakness came back, and three times she was confined to her room by sickness. In her last illness Dr. Lewis expressed the fear that she would not be strong enough to continue the work. Miss Blackmore accepted her dismissal with a smile. Her successor was to begin the duties of assistant to the head nurse yesterday, and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon Miss Blackmore went up to her room on the top floor and began to pack her trunks. With her was Mary Ross, the chambermaid.

"Wait one minute. Mary," said Miss Ross, when the trunks were ready, "Til go into the clothes-closet and fix my dress." She bent down and kissed her and walked to the closet in the rear. The door closed behind her; there was a shot and a heavy fail.

From the expert's report the George L. Hassell account appears to have been carried along for years when it was known to be worthless. It was carried as good paper, from which profits were entered as earned, and from which dividends were paid. When Mr. Hassell's name was losing caste some of the bank directors carried the thing along as the St. Kevin Mining Company, spparently using bank funds with which to do it.

It is reported that as early as ISSS the fact was well known that Hassell's notes were worthless, and when these last notes were discounted it must have been known that the paper was worthless, and that the St. Kevin mine was without value. The last record shows concerning Mr. Hassell's accounts that he owed on un-

The books show that the loans to the St. Kevin Mining Company aggregated $03,-181.02, making a total of $166.283.00 which the hank-lost through Hassell and the mine. For this loan the St. Kevin mining stock was taken by the bank directors St. Kevin mining stock was taken by the bank directors as collateral. It is shown by resolutions passed in the beard of directors that all notes discounted or renewed must bear the initials of one of the discount committee, and that therefore no one man is responsible for the bank's condition, as has been repeatedly stated. The expert has brought many other things to light which will be reported at the meeting of the depositors' organization.

Fitz-gerald pulled out his revolver, and, to get free from her, beat her on the head until she fell. He then pursued her son through the house, and as he caught sight of him disappearing over the hack fence of the yard he fited a shot after him. An ambulance was called for Mrs. Ryan, and at the hospital it was found that her skull had been fractured. The policeman was not arrested, but a written report of the affair was called for by his captain, who made a full investigation. The neighborhood is filled with youths who annoy the police in every way.

THEY WANT THE STATE TO TAKE THE FARM A movement was made yesterday in the matter of the transfer of the costly and expensive St. John land County Farm for the care of the insane to the State Board at the meeting of the Charities Commis-sioners. President B. T. In speaking to his resolution he said that Kings County had to pay $160.587 85 to the State for the support of the insane of other counties (except New-York) this year in addition to paying $875.090 for the support of its own insane. The county was burdened with the St. Johniand Farm, which had already cost $1.000,000, for limited accommodations, and would cost more millions to complete it, as well as hundreds of thousands of deliars a year for its support. The other Commissioners expressed themselves in favor of the resolution, but formal consideration was fall over for a week. Commissioner Gott said that the Supervisors must take the initiative in the matter, as the county owned the farm. sone of Kings County to the State, together with
